

Who We Are:

International Telecommunications Society (ITS) is an association of professionals in the evolving communications sector, including telephony, computing, Internet, broadcasting, content (media), and related industries. Our goal is to provide a forum where people can meet to identify developing business and regulatory issues and share new research or approaches to address these issues.

We are an independent, non-aligned and not-for-profit organization with a worldwide network of over 350 members from the academic, private sector and government communities. We believe that our greatest strength is the multiple perspectives that our members bring to the issues we address. This diversity can create innovative ideas and solutions not likely to be developed in one discipline, one profession, or one country.

Our work places particular emphasis on the interrelationships among the socioeconomic, technological, legal, regulatory, competitive, organizational, and ethical dimensions of the issues addressed. For information about the locations and scope of past and upcoming conferences please see our website at www.itsworld.org.

We welcome new members who want to participate in this important work.

For More Information

If you would like more information about us, including further details on the benefits of membership, access to our online membership application form, a calendar of upcoming conferences and seminars you may be interested in attending, contact information for all of our Board and Committee members, a copy of our Bylaws or various other archived materials, please visit our website at www.itsworld.org.

Any Questions?

Please feel free to direct any questions to any member of the Board of Directors (see website for contact information) or to the ITS Secretariat:

E-mail: secretariat@itsworld.org

International Telecommunications
Society

A MEETING OF MINDS

from Government, Industry and Academia

www.itsworld.org